Guardians for the Red Shield Appeal.

The Salvation Army are vital guardians for those in need. Which is why Guardian Funerals are proud supporters of the Red Shield Appeal, helping the Salvos make a real difference to the lives of over one million Australians every year.

As part of our support, we’re opening our doors during business hours, from 13th May until 3rd June, to accept donations for the Red Shield Appeal, making it easier for our community to help The Salvation Army keep their doors open to others.

Memorial service for Lady Macarthur-Onslow, Campbelltown

She owned one of Macarthur’s landmark properties and devoted countless hours to local charities and community groups.

Lady Dorothy Macarthur Onslow, of Mount Gilead, died on May 10, aged 90. She was the widow of army officer, businessman and local grazier Sir Denzil Macarthur-Onslow, who died in 1984 – a descendant of prominent local wool pioneer John Macarthur.

Lady Macarthur-Onslow, formerly Dorothy Winsley Conagher, worked as a medical practitioner before the pair married in Petersham, Sydney, in 1950. They had two children, Lee and Katrina, who were raised at their Mount Gilead property.

The Macarthur-Onslow family, owners of nearby Camden Park Estate, had bought the parcel of land in 1941.

Lady Macarthur-Onslow served on many boards, including the University of Western Sydney and South Western Sydney Area Health Service.

She also devoted her time to Scouts, Girl Guides and various hospitals and health organisations.

She became an Officer of the Order of Australia (AO) in 1987.

Her daughter Katrina Hobson told the Advertiser: “Both Lee, my brother, and I are very proud of our mother’s tremendous achievements and contribution over the years to the community.”

Lady Macarthur-Onslow was also patron of the Campbelltown and Airds Historical Society from 1990 to 2010 when she retired due to ill health.

Society member Stella Vernon described her as “a very gracious patron” who attended many meetings and functions. A funeral service was held in North Ryde on Friday.
